Recently released from a Management Control Unit (MCU) after spending years in solitary confinement, New Afrikan anarchist Prisoner of War OJORE NURU LUTALO is still incarcerated in Trenton, New Jersey, for actions carried out in the fight for Black Liberation.

In 1977, Ojore received a 14-year sentence for "expropriating monies from a capitalist state bank (in order to finance our activities) and engaging the political police in a gun battle in December 1975 in order to effect our departure from the bank, and to ensure success of the military operation..." He is currently serving a 40-year sentence for a 1982 gunfight with a drug dealer. "The overall strategy of assaulting a drug dealer is to secure monies to finance one's activities, and to rid oppressed communities of drug dealers."

Ojore was a comrade of the late Kuwasi Balagoon, a New Afrikan anarchist POW. "I've been involved in the struggle, the war against the fascist state since 1970. I've been an anarchist since 1975 without any regrets... I was... influenced and highly motivated by the Black Liberation Army (BLA) here in Amerika... From the inception of all revolutions, I feel that the people need armed combat units to check state sponsored acts of terrorism by the government's security forces."

Ojore has long been a powerful voice urging progressive groups and individuals to materially support PP/POWs. "We don't need moral support because we have purpose. We don't need anyone to tell us to stay strong because we have come to terms with the prospect of death and captivity."

Since September 11, we have witnessed the increasing criminalization of dissent, although this tendency was in evidence many years ago. As a result, there are almost 100 Political Prisoners and Prisoners of War (PP/POWs) in North America. In light of this current climate of repression, it is even more imperative than ever that we continue to struggle against this systematic injustice.

PP/POWs are those persons who have been sent to prison for their conscious revolutionary political activities on the streets. Though all prisoners righteously struggling against the repressive prison system should be supported, PP/POW's deserve the priority support of the revolutionary movement that they have sacrificed their freedom to build. As anarchist POW Ojore Lutalo has stated, "Any political movement that does not support its political interneers is a sham movement!"
